At the famous Raj Ghat, see the site of Mahatma Gandhi's cremation after his 1948 assassination. Later, continue to New Delhi; its tree-lined streets and orderly colonial buildings are a sharp contrast to bustling Old Delhi. You'll also see the open-air observatory, Jantar Mantar, whose name means "Magical Device." Built in 1728, it was created to discover the mysteries of the cosmos. See the Palace of the Winds, which looks like a crown—its nooks and crannies provided places for women of the court to observe the busy streets below. In the evening, ride through the bazaars of Jaipur in a rickshaw and shop for souvenirs.
- Visit Jaipur bazaars

DAY 9: AGRA

Built in an Islamic theme to represent paradise, the Taj Mahal was created by Shah Jahan as an eternal symbol of love for his favorite wife, Mumtaz Mahal ("Jewel of the Palace"), who died during childbirth. Be amazed by this marble structure adorned with precious stones brought in from around the world, including jade, crystal, mother-of-pearl, lapis and turquoise. The building appears to change color depending on the time of the day. Construction began in 1632, the year after Mumtaz Mahal died, and nearly 20,000 laborers completed the Taj Mahal in 1653.
